Names/Faces

Dean: Cold Water on Deep Throat

John Dean says there's "no way" Fred Fielding, Dean's own assistant when he was counsel to Richard M. Nixon at the White House, could be Deep Throat, the celebrated talker of Watergate. That's the same thing that Fielding said when he learned that H.R. Haldeman, Nixon's chief of staff, is going to name him in his forthcoming book "The Ends of Power." Dean also says: "I worked very closely with Fielding. I hired him, I brought him to the White House. I don't think Fielding knew some of the things that Deep Throat knew." Somebody at the Nixon White House must have felt the same way about Dean.